University of Utah Women's Basketball, Gymnastics and Men's Basketball Student Athletes Given Opportunity to Receive 2024 Jeep® Grand Cherokee L or 2024 Ram 1500 Big Horn

December 14, 2023, Salt Lake City - In perhaps the largest teamwide NIL agreement in collegiate women's sports, the Utah Crimson Collective and its streaming app, Utah 360°, surprised its athletes again on Wednesday, December 13 by announcing a landmark agreement honoring the University of Utah's women's and men's basketball and women's gymnastics teams. This extends an extraordinary offer to every eligible athlete with a choice of receiving a 2024 Jeep® Grand Cherokee L Limited Edition or a 2024 Ram 1500 Big Horn truck, complete with the Night Edition package.

Utah Crimson Collective put these plans in motion last spring to provide the student athletes the opportunity to have the vehicles in time for their respective seasons.

"As a former University of Utah gymnast, it's incredibly meaningful for me to support our female athletes, as well as our talented young men," said Nicole Mouskondis, co-CEO of Nicholas and Co. and board member of Crimson Collective. "When we began with the Crimson Collective, we envisioned an equitable platform that supports and connects all student athletes and particularly our women's teams. This initiative is not just about providing transportation, it's about showing all our student athletes that their achievements and contributions to the community are equally celebrated, on and off the field."

The lease and insurance costs are being provided by donors to the Crimson Collective for as long as each student is eligible, ensuring every player is acknowledged and appreciated for their contributions and encouraged to give back to our local communities. During the fall, they offered Ram 1500 trucks to every football scholarship player.

The Collective is designed to support Utah student athletes and their contribution to non-profit organizations in the Salt Lake community. In addition to Mouskondis, Athletic Director Mark Harlan, coaches, Collective board members and fans were on hand to unveil the SUVs and trucks and share the news with the student athletes.

"This historic offering is game-changing, particularly for women's collegiate sports. Building off our success with Utes' football, we're setting a new standard by enhancing support and expanding opportunities in collegiate athletics, paving the way for a more inclusive and equitable environment for all athletes," said Derek Mattsson, CEO of For The Win 360°. "The Utah 360° streaming app has been instrumental in this historic initiative, not only with new opportunities for these incredible athletes but also by introducing a new avenue for donors and sponsors to support the students."

"I grew up watching and dreaming of becoming a Lady Ute. Women's gymnastics has been part of my life, and today I am so proud to be part of the Crimson Collective, which has, since its inception, been dedicated to honoring the women athletes of Utah, as well as the men. I hope my enthusiasm for these programs will be contagious as I cover them on the Utah 360° streaming app," said Missy Marlowe, former women's gymnastics champion, former Olympian and NCAA gymnastics champion.

Utah 360° is the Utah Crimson Collective's free streaming app loaded with exclusive content that empowers student athletes to open doors to promotional and financial opportunities. Moreover, it introduces an innovative avenue for donors and sponsors to support universities and collectives, ensuring amplified visibility for brands backing these athletes.

In conjunction with this landmark NIL opportunity, Utah 360° has expanded its slate of exclusive content to feature original programming focused on women's gymnastics and women's and men's basketball, led by Utah sports legends and storytellers, including Missy Marlowe as the gymnastics ambassador and Sean Mooney as the basketball ambassador.
